BLOODLESS VICTORY.

General Kearney Took Possession of Santa Fe on the Afternoon of August 18, 1846.

MILITIA CALLED TO ARMS.

Mexican General Deserted the Territory and Left the Way Open to Advancing Americans.

The following is a literal translation of the address of Captain Aniceto Abeyta delivered at the presentation of the portrait of Major-General Stephen W. Kearney to the Historical Society of New Mexico by his daughter, Mrs. Ella Kearney Bascome, on August 12:

The events which took place in the months of August, 1846, form the theme of my discourse, which I will preface with the statement that before the 18th of August of that year the province of New Mexico formed a part of and was in the possession of Mexico, but on account of disagreements between that republic and the United States war was declared. As soon as that was done the American government sent an expedition, commanded by General Stephen W. Kearney, to take possession of New Mexico and the other territories pertaining to the Mexican government, which, at that time, was represented here by General Manuel Armijo. This official on learning of the march of the American troops toward New Mexico issued a proclamation calling the militia to arms to defend the country against the American invasion. The militia responded to the call and made a force of about 2,000 men which was assembled at Cañoncito de los Apaches. This force was later joined by General Armijo with his regular troops and artillery. After camping at Cañoncito he called a council of the officers under his command, but they could agree on no course as some of them favored peace and others declared for war. General Armijo made an inspection of the camp and found many of the militia without arms and in no way equipped to cope with a well armed and well disciplined army. General Armijo ordered a retreat and directed that the militiamen go to their homes and attended to their private affairs. He, with a few regular troops, directed his course toward the Mexican line and left at Galisteo three guns which later fell into the hands of the Americans. It was in this fashion that the Mexican general deserted New Mexico and left the way open to the advancing Americans.

General Armijo's action was, however, hailed with joy and gave the New Mexican people that liberty for which they had so long hoped. The brave American commander now made the capital of New Mexico his objective point and entered Santa Fe on the eighteenth day of August, 1846, between the hours of 2 and 5 in the afternoon. His columns deployed on the heights of Buena Vista and marched through San Miguel street to the plaza. Conscious of victory they marched around the plaza and then out San Francisco street to the west. The troops in line were three battalions of dragoons, the first battalion being mounted on black horses, the second on white and the third on sorrel horses. After the dragoons, came the infantry, and the march through San Francisco street was continued until arriving at Rosario street where they turned to the north and marched to the arroyo. At this point they again turned to the east and coming to the Tesuque road followed it in a southerly direction to the north-west corner of the plaza and halted on Palace avenue in front of the main door of the old palace. Here the general dismounted and took possession of the territory in the name of the United States of America, placing us under the protection of the star spangled banner, which was raised on high and waved over the plaza. The troops were then ordered into camp on the heights of Buena Vista and on the north side of the plaza in the cienega.

On the first of August, 1846, there met at the palace the corporation of the town of Santa Fe, headed by Don Juan Bautista Vigil, and they made formal surrender and delivery of the palace and the sovereignty of the province of New Mexico to the United States. General Kearney then said: "I, Stephen W. Kearney, general of the army of the United States, by virtue of the authority conferred on me, do hereby proclaim and ordain that I have taken possession of the province of New Mexico in the name of the government of the United States, and in the name of that government do hereby advise and instruct the inhabitants of this country to deliver their arms and to surrender absolutely to the government of the United States, in whose name I promise to this country and its people protection to their persons, lives and property, defending them in their homes and possessions against any savage tribe. For this government is very powerful to protect you in any untoward event, and in this manner I take this province of New Mexico for the benefit of the United States."

He then sent troops to make a reconnaissance of the country, feeling proud of having achieved a bloodless victory in the conquest of this territory.

On August 4, Colonel Kearney having encamped at Las Vegas received his commission as brigadier in the United States army. After his entry into Santa Fe and his taking possession of the territory, a grand ball was given in his honor in the ball of the old palace, which was attended by many ladies of rank.

On September 22 he organized the government and appointed Charles Bent governor and Donaciano Vigil secretary, together with Joab Houghton, Antonio José Otero and Charles Beaubien district judges, and Frank P. Blair attorney general. Then was framed an act commonly called the Kearney code, which still forms a part of the statutes of the territory. On September 27 of the same year General Kearney set forth with a portion of his army towards California, March 1, 1847, he took possession of California and declared it a part of the United States.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

150 South 8th Street.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BESSLEY, Salina, Kas.

Paying and Old Debt.
Mr. Davis's son, a stalwart young man, had returned from college, "Father," he said, "when I was a boy mother used to make your old clothes over for me, didn't she?" "I think she did, sometimes, Henry," answered Mr. Davis.

"Well, I am glad it is within my power to make some sort of recompense," said Henry, opening his suit case. "Here is an evening suit a tailor made for me a year or two ago. I have entirely outgrown it, but I think it will just fit you, and it's as good as new. Suppose you try it on."

Being a sensible man, Mr. Davis swallowed whatever pride may have been involved in the transaction, and tried the garments on. They did fit him perfectly.

"They're yours, father," said Henry, loftily.

End of Bitter Fight.
"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with abscess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga., "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my way feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed by all Druggists Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Absent Minded.
Lord Salisbury was absent minded to a painful degree, and King Edward tells a story about him which is more or less a joke on his majesty himself. Salisbury was talking with the monarch, and thoughtlessly picked up a photograph of him which was on the table. He examined it thoughtfully, and then said: "Poor old duffer; I wonder if he is as stupid as he looks."—New York Tribune.

Careless Josh.
"I guess Josh must be walkin' in his sleep," said Farmer Cornstossel as he held a letter up to the lamp for closer scrutiny. "What makes you think so?" "In this letter he says 'I must close, as it is almost 10 o'clock and time for me to retire,' but the stamp on the envelope shows that it was mailed about 2 a. m."—Washington Post.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. K. Kable of Nevada, O., says: "I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months, and it cured me."
Kodol Digests What You Eat and relieves the stomach of all nervous strain and the heart of all pressure.
Bottles only, $1.00. Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.
